

Klaus..Dieroff

For those friends that don't know...Klaus was taken to the emergency room a week ago (Monday 15th) by ambulance from out of work...

Battery of tests were done and he was diagnosed with Renal Cell Carcinoma of the right Kidney.

The tumor had grown through the wall of the kidney and into the main vein and uo toward the heart and into many lymph nodes around it. He has stage 3 cancer. Without surgey, possibly 8 months to live.

With surgery, he has a 25% chance to still be here in 5 years.

We were lucky enough to find a local urologist that would do the surgery.

They perfomed a 7 hour surgery yesterday and have gotten the tumor out also removed his right kidney, along with the infected nodes. He is in intensive care now...still has breathing tube in, but that may come out today. As of 5:45 this a.m when I spoke to the night nurse...he did not sleep well, but sometimes that happens after surgery. He is alert and writing messages to the nurse for his needs, and stable so far....

It is still touch and go for the next few days as with any major surgery....

His spirits are high and he gave me a thumbs up and indicated he loved me last night when I told him he did super through the surgery. He will probably be in ICU for a few more days..

I have heard there are friends &quot;pissed&quot; cause he did not let them know....

Please don't be angry...he was in shock as we all were,and it was his way of dealing...and we only found out on Thursday about the cancer and spent all day Friday having preadmission testing...there wasn't time to notify everyone this was totally out of the blue...no warnings at all...they thought he might have a bleeding ulcer and when tests were run found the cancer instead...

I will try to update more here as soon as I can...

if you are friends on his Facebook page or on mine, I am updating there also

I thank you all for the well wishes and prayers

7:30 PM...

Klaus may have taken another step forward tonight...They have his BP meds off again, and he is holding his own there...the have the breathing ventilator turned way down and he is breathing on his own, they are keeping it in right now , just in case and to see how he does without it...

He looked much better to me tonight, and they have drained a lot more fluid off his body with the dialysis machine and he is tolerating all of that ok. They have started him on the tube feeding again, but a lot less than before and checking every 4 hours to see if he is able to tolerate that...He is putting out the most urine per hour since his surgery, which means maybe the kidney is starting to wake up now. I spoke to him to tell him I love him just before i left and I said you can hear me right and he nodded a little bit. He is still sedated so they can start weaning him off things a bit at a time...and they increase that and the BP meds if needed..

But....I'm happy tonight...I think we are headed in the right direction...

Thank you for the support and the wishes and cards...as soon as he is awake enough I will take them to him.

I'll update again tomorrow night

Happy Halloween Everyone

Pat

5:30 am....called the hospital, the Night nurse says Klaus had a very good night. The BP meds have been off all night , and he is making more urine each hour. They took the feeding tube out again, because he is not digesting what they are giving him...maybe they will try that again later. They did turn up his sedation a little...but overall good news

7pm...

Klaus still seems to be improving...they still have him sedated, but I don't ever remember EVER being excited that someone is peeing...Dr's are very happy about too...it means that remaining kidney is starting to work.

He has been responding to the nurses today by nodding yes and no and squeezing hands...he didn't open his eyes while I was there tonight, but he did nod yes he could hear me. His BP was little elevated, but I think its because he is starting to come around more. Ventilator still in, but he is breathing on his own...hopefully that will be out in another day or so

Please keep up the prayers...they are working

7:30 PM...

Klaus still sleeping...they turned his sedation off this morning, but Dr' says it takes time to get out of his system...he nods and responds by shaking his head sometimes...but it will be a day or so til he can focus...Dr is thrilled and so am I at his progress...yesterday and today...breathing tube may come out tomorrow..its still there like a crutch for now...

Update again tomorrow...

keep saying prayers....they are helping

I want to thank you all again for all the well wishes and the cards and notes

If you wish to send a card, you can send to our home and when he is moved out of ICU I will take them to him.

5:30 pm

I just left the hospital. he is better each day. They have taken him off all the sedation and are trying to wake him up enough to take out the breathing tube. I spoke to his DR, and he says he is not alert enough yet...maybe tomorrow, the medicine still is in his body so it takes time to get it out even though its turned off.

Klaus opened his eyes and looked at me today when I spoke to him and nodded when I asked him questions, so he is starting to come around....He has been in bed now on his back for 13 days...he NEVER sleeps on his back and when I noticed him trying to move a bit, I asked if his back hurt and he nodded yes...I'm sure it does, he has back problems already. He also nodded yes when I asked him if he was cold, so i got him a blanket

I will be up to see him again tomorrow and hopefully the news will be even better..

He is uncomfortable ...but on his way ...

5:30 a.m.

HUGE setback...

I just called the hospital and spoke to a Dr, who is taking care of Klaus now instead of a nurse...Klaus was doing so well overnight they decided to take out the breathing tube, when they did his vocal cords were so swollen they were closing up and he couldn't breath well. They had to put the breathing tube back in , and before they could do that he vomitted and some went down his air passage and into his lungs. The Dr said there is a good chance now he will develop pneumonia. The stomach contents are acidic and now into the lungs it may cause more issues. They need to watch him closer for infection and signs for pneumonia.

He is heavily sedated again, and will be for several hours. He will have the breathing tube in again probably several more days, unless they decide to perform a tracheostomy (they talked of that before).

I am sick and at a loss this morning, he was doing so well...

Please keep praying for him

Klaus sedated again, on several antibiotics (in case of infection ) and back on dialysis. The dialysis is only to clean the toxins out of his blood at this time, no fluid being removed. He nodded a little when his sisters and I were in there in response to our questions. , but they have increased the sedation tonight to let him rest more while they are doing "whatever it is they are doing"...

They have taken several cultures and have sent them out for diagnosis ...it will be a couple more days til they have the results. His Dr. said, when they took the breathing tube out, his vocal cords were so swollen , they just closed up and he could not breath, so they put the tube back in...

When we left the hospital tonight he was stabilized again..(with medication) and sleeping. I will call again in the morning to check on him and see him tomorrow night after work

I will update tomorrow

6:15 am..

another turn around...Klaus had a restful night.

they have turned his sedation down again so he is alert again. They have turned the breathing machine down again so he is breathing on his own, with the machine for an assist...all other vitals I'm being told are stable. He was nodding to the nurses this morning to answer questions.

I guess we are heading back up the hill again...I'll see him after work and update again later

8:45 pm

I saw Klaus after work tonight, he is the most alert he has been. He squeezed my hand and mouthed that he loves me...he got a little frustrated when he tried to write and couldn't put on paper what he wanted...but we finally figured out he was trying to write ....go home...he wants to go home....they will try to take out the breathing tube again tomorrow if he is up to it and things go ok...its possible they may have to put it back in again, or do a treacheostomy, and put the tube right in his throat (temporarily)

I will see him tomorrow night after work and update again then
