

george cannellos

Posted by hstrong - 13 Jan 2013 15:46

i am sad to say that george cannellos has past away he died at home in his sleep
he raced a red 1968 dodge charger he was 87 yrs old the obit is on line at syracuse.com

=====

Re: george cannellos

Posted by 70ss396 - 13 Jan 2013 16:25

He will surely be missed. Great guy, role model and friend to everyone that knew him.

=====

Re: george cannellos

Posted by ten5abody - 13 Jan 2013 17:53

Sorry to hear this:(He was always fun to talk to and watch race that car.

=====

Re: george cannellos

Posted by tracman466 - 14 Jan 2013 09:18

John and family I am very sorry to hear of your Dad's passing.

=====

Re: george cannellos

Posted by Jeff Parker - 14 Jan 2013 11:33

Ya had to admire George. I spoke with him a few years ago when he wasnt able to race the Charger because of his pacemaker & the MSD. He was out there with his truck. "Better than sittin home, but sure wish I was in the car" After working all week at the pizza shop! I missed seeing George out at the track.

=====

Re: george cannellos

Posted by 9secamc - 14 Jan 2013 13:41

ESTA Safety Park and the drag racing world has lost another great one. I am proud to have called George my friend. He was always fun to talk to about the old days and I will miss him. RIP Cosmo!

=====

Re: george cannellos

Posted by sundayfunmoney - 15 Jan 2013 15:35

is this the gentlemen that came with his son or grandson?? who is probably in his twentys?? i think this is the guy i raced in the finals one time with my challenger in mod. or something and his son or grandson tripped the beams by accident while were staging and i got the win....i believe its the same guy..i remember talking with him for awhile because of our mopar intrest ..how sad.....rip.....scott b.

=====

Re: george cannellos

Posted by elkyman70 - 18 Jan 2013 15:01

i am very sorry to hear this. george was always such a chipper guy. i had many great chats with him at the track. my sympathies go out to the family.

=====